THE NEED FOR REGISTERED APPRENTICESHIP IN HEALTHCARE

The healthcare industry is critical to the country's wellbeing—and the economy. In 2022, there were 20,799 apprentices in the healthcare industry. The challenge? Employment in healthcare is projected to grow faster than the average for all occupations through 2032, with 1.8 million openings per year.¹ However, talent shortages, burnout among healthcare workers and increasing skill demands have made it difficult to keep pace with growing demand. Among these challenges:

- ▶ Large numbers of highly-skilled workers that are nearing retirement.
- ▶ Increased cost of labor and recruitment due to staff shortages and challenges attracting new talent pools with the right education, skills, and credentials.
- ▶ Retaining skilled workers, including those eligible to retire.
- ▶ Developing talent that can keep pace with advances in healthcare technology and service delivery.
- ▶ Increasing workforce training capacity including access to career pathways.

These workforce challenges impact healthcare quality, efficiency and patient outcomes. The good news? There is a proven solution that can be integrated into existing training and workforce development strategies to meet critical talent challenges: Registered Apprenticeship is a proven and industry-driven training model that can provide a critical talent pipeline for healthcare organizations..

WHAT IS REGISTERED APPRENTICESHIP?

Registered Apprenticeship is an industry-driven, high-quality career pathway where employers can develop and prepare their future workforce, and individuals can obtain paid work experience, receive progressive wage increases, classroom instruction, and a portable, nationally-recognized credential. Registered Apprenticeships are industry-vetted and approved and validated by the U.S. Department of Labor or a State Apprenticeship Agency.

“Loretto’s LPN Apprenticeship program, which was the first federally registered LPN apprenticeship program in the country, has provided a pathway to prosperity for our employees and has allowed the organization to deliver the highest quality care to some of the most vulnerable individuals in our region. The ability to ‘earn as you learn’ helps our employees focus on their personal and professional growth. It’s changing lives, and it’s changing who we are as an organization.”—Dr. Kimberly Townsend, CEO/President, Loretto
